Kyntus, a global expert in telecommunications and energy network deployment and maintenance services, is strengthening its governance with the arrival of Franck Bouétard as Chief Executive Officer.

Kyntus has experienced accelerated growth in recent years: the signing of contracts with leading clients such as Bouygues Telecom, Orange and Thales, international expansion in Germany, Ireland and the United States – notably through the acquisition of Entegro – and the diversification of its activities with data centers are all steps that have made the Group a key player in its sector.

In order to support this growth trajectory and accelerate its development, Kyntus has decided to strengthen its governance. To achieve this, the company has appointed Franck Bouétard as Chief Executive Officer of the Group, effective 2 February 2026. The Board of Directors will be chaired by Fabrice de Seze, the Group's current Chairman.

A graduate of Télécom Paris and IFA Sciences Po (French Institute of Directors), Franck Bouétard began his career at Accenture, then at Elf Aquitaine in the United Kingdom, before moving on to an American start-up and the Alcatel group. He then joined Ericsson, where he spent 24 years in various international management positions before becoming Managing Director for France, Belgium, Luxembourg and North Africa. Franck is also a member of the Boards of Directors of IN Groupe, Hub One (Paris Airport), the Article 1 equal opportunities association and Télécom Paris.

"With his extensive experience in telecoms, Franck has a thorough understanding of the specificities of our service business and our ecosystem. We are confident that his arrival will enable us to further accelerate Kyntus' growth in France and internationally," said Fabrice de Seze.

"It is with great pleasure that I join Kyntus today, to help the Group accelerate its global development in telecoms, energy and data centres, areas that are vital to our modern societies. I will humbly contribute my experience of profitable growth, my strategic vision, my contacts and my taste for operations, as well as all my energy and commitment. Kyntus is a company positioned in high-potential markets, with a solid shareholder and financial structure and a robust, high-quality operational culture; it therefore has everything it needs to succeed in this new challenge," commented Franck Bouétard.
